

Introduction

When planning a visit to an unknown place we often have a hard time deciding which area would be the best to stay at for this short time. Some of the main concerns in that situation are price of the accommodation and safety of the area. Additionally, because we come as tourists, we want to be close to tourist attractions and eating out places. Due to the number of criteria making an optimal choice might not be that straightforward.

Here, an analysis of different criteria to be considered while travelling to Istanbul is performed. Based on that analysis a classification of districts of the area is made to indicate the most optimal areas to stay at.
